We will receive by telegraph each day the official weather forecasts and cold wave warnings and will display signal flags as follows:

Number 1, white flag, indicates clear or fair weather. Number 2, blue flag, indicates rain or snow. Number 3, black, triangular flag, always refers to temperature; when placed above numbers 1 or 2 it indicates warmer weather; when placed below numbers 1 or 2 it indicates colder weather; when not displayed, the indications are that the temperature will remain stationary, or that the change in temperature will not vary five degrees from the temperature of the same hour of the preceding day.
Number 4, white flag, with black square in centre, indicates the approach of a sudden and decided fall in temperature.

IN MEMORIAM.

"Blessed are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord. 'The Lord is my Strength and Song, and is become my salvation.'

Departed this life, April 19th 1890, Bernice, youngest daughter of Mrs. Emilie E. Hale, aged nearly seventeen years, deprived of a father when only six years old she was left to the care of a kind and loving mother.

Being of delicate health nearly all her life, she naturally became the idol and pet of the family.

For seven long weeks she was confined to her bed with a disease that baffled the skill of the best physicians; during all that time she was never heard to murmur or complain, although her sufferings were terrible to the last moment. Before being confined to the bed with her last illness, she fainted, while sitting near the fire, fell with her face in the bed of coals and was seriously burned, leaving a mark that she carried to the grave. Never was there a more beautiful and obedient child than Bernice; others might be neglectful of their duty but she never was of hers.

She was good and kind to all, from the least thing to the greatest. The little child ever shed a tear over a spoiled toy, or a bruised limb, when she was present, without having its tears dried and its troubles relieved by her loving hands. The poor little orphans and forsaken ones at school were chosen for her companions. When asked by her playmates why she did so, she replied that she could enjoy herself with them and make them happier too.

But her goodness was reflected in the patient watching and nursing of the scores, both old and young, who came to wait upon her in her last illness. Little children who were too young to realize what death was, would tip across the floor to her bedside, and beg to be lifted up in some arms that they might see "Poor Bernie."

She was speechless for sixteen hours but seemed to realize that death was near. A few hours before her death she looked up at her weeping sisters and brothers and smiled, then turned her dying eyes upon her almost heart-broken mother, who was kneeling by the side of her dying couch, and laughed. Death came at one o'clock a.m. and her spirit was borne on angels' pinions back to the God who gave it.

A large crowd of relatives and friends attended the funeral and followed the remains to the last resting place in the family burying ground by the side of her father. Grieve not dear parent, brothers and sisters for your darling one who is not lost but gone before and is now safe in the arms of Jesus.

From the grave.

"I turn my weeping eyes on high,
Where solace to the grieved is given,
For something points to the sky,
And softly whispers 'She's in Heaven.'

QUEER RESTAURANTS.

FULL OF FUN.

How Paris Provides for Ex-Convicts and mentally-Minded Guests.

"Talk about cheap restaurants," said a New Yorker, who had just returned from the French Exposition, "we don't seem to have anything here to touch one or two I saw in Paris when I was there. I know we can do pretty well in that line down in Mott street, perhaps, but I am sure that these I saw take the cake. They are in the poorest part of the city, of course, and their customers are of the doubtful—well, not doubtful at all, but, rather, decidedly shady—class of the population, who are moving about, talking and laughing, and are ready speakers and writers. A third holds the theory that the prevailing color of the eyes of men is gray.

Colonel Higginson speaks of Nathaniel Hawthorne's "gray eyes," while F. H. Underwood, "who once stoned them atavistically gone." Mr. Wickwire said, "I am not surprised to hear it. She was always giving someone or other a piece of wisdom, to be ready speakers and writers. A third holds the theory that the prevailing color of the eyes of men is gray.

David Gray's were "large and lusty," according to Rossetti's "gray-blue, crimson and pearly" eyes, and characterized by that rapid, penetrating gaze so noticeable in Emerson.

Shelley's eyes are always spoken of as magnificent and fully indicative of his wayward genius. One writer describes them as "large and animated, with a dash of wildness in them;" another speaks of them as "such a pair of eyes as are rarely seen in a human or any other head, intensely blue, with a gentle and lambent expression, yet wonderfully alert and engrossing." Medwin, while writing of Shelley's appearance, refers to his blue eyes "very large and prominent. They were of a shade which he had adopted, as it were, in contemplation, dull, and often when he had abandoned, as it were, his thoughts, to the surface of the water." Tom Moore's eyes were "dark and fine as you would wish to see under a set of vine leaves."

Coleridge was prodigious—a great piece of forehead was prodigious—a great piece of placid marble; and his fine eyes, in which all the activity of his mind seemed to concentrate, moved under it with a sprightly ease, as if it were a piece of mechanism. "Another restaurant which I visited was that of Coleridge, who was excessively fine. His eyes were large, light gray, and prominent, of liquid brilliancy, which some eyes of fine character may be observed to possess as though the orb itself retreated to the innermost recesses of the brain." In his "Life of Sterling," Carlyle introduces his famous description of Coleridge's appearance. "The deep eyes, of a light hazel, were 'bright,' as full of sorrow as of immediate arrest by the police and cannot afford to come out of their hiding-places long enough to eat. If you did not know the place to be the resort of thieves you would soon begin to suspect it. Nothing about the place is more dangerous than the tables and benches are screwed to the floor, the iron basins from which the food is eaten are sunk into the tables and screwd down at the edges. The spoons, knives, cups, and forks are also secured by short chains to the tables, as far as the food is already seasoned, no pepper or salt castors are provided."

"The eyes of Kents were described by one of his contemporaries as "mellow and glowing; large, dark and sensitive." Cowden Clarke states that they were of a brown color, or dark hazel, thus contradicting Mrs. Proctor's assertion that they were "blue."

"The finest eyes, in every sense of the word, which I have seen in a man's head (and I have seen many fine ones) are those of Thomas Carlyle." Such is the testimony of "High Hunt." In a description of the "queer" rooms, we find the following: "There he stood, ringed of features, brow abrupt like a low cliff, craggy over eyes deep set, large, piercing, between blue and dark gray, dark, rolling eyes.

Leigh Hunt, in his "Autobiography," speaking of Wordsworth's appearance, says: "I never beheld eyes that looked so inspired or supernatural. They were like fire half burning, half smouldering with a sort of acrid fixture of regard, and seated at the further end of two caverns. One might suppose he had eyes of steel and such eyes."

Walter Scott says of Burns: "There was a strong expression of sensibility and shrewdness in all his lineaments; the eye alone, I think, indicated the poetical character and temperament. It was

There are strikes and threats of strikes all over the country. The various unions of workmen have begun a concerted movement to demand eight hours work at ten hours pay.

Collector Ferland has been at Frankfort, the Louisville Times says, trying to re-open the fight against the Christian County registration bill and secure the passage of Mr. Clark's amendment, whatever it is.

Hon. John L. Dorsey, of Henderson, has withdrawn from the race for Superior Court Judge and Hon. W. M. Smith, of Mayfield, still hesitates about announcing himself. It begins to look like the race is made up between Col. Yost and Senator Wortham.

Mrs. Thompson's successor as postmaster at Louisville, will be appointed this week and the chances of that lady for re-appointment are by no means as bright as they were some days ago. There are half a dozen "offensive partisans" of the masculine gender after the place.

The International Copyright Bill was defeated in the Lower House of Congress Friday by 126 to 98 votes. This puts brains on the free list and shows the selfishness of the Republican majority, which is opposed to the protection of any commodity that would not benefit Republicans.

Gov. Buckner created a sensation Saturday by resigning from the sinking fund board, on account of the criticism of the Legislature. He takes the ground that the services incident to this office are not a part of his constitutional duties. The criticism objected to was in regard to the penitentiary at Eddyville, which was denied a further appropriation.

The Democratic party has lost one of its great men in the death of Senator Beck. For twenty-five years he has been one of the best fighters in the party and for twelve years has been in the Senate, having just entered upon his third term. His health had been failing for some time but his sudden death was a shock to the whole country. His place will be hard to fill.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years it was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses of 10 drams to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the body, and cures the same as other patients.

The Senate refused to concur in the House amendment to the Christian County Common Pleas bill and it returns to the House to be given another chance. Mr. Clark is not opposing the bill, as stated by the Louisville Times.

The Mason-Foard Co. propose to surrender their lease of the convict labor by July 1 if the Stats will take their machinery plant off their hands or give them thirty days to remove it. The proposition was referred to a committee.

DROPPED DEAD.

Senator Beck Suddenly Expires at Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Senator Jas. B. Beck, of Kentucky, dropped dead in the Baltimore & Potomac station at 4 o'clock this afternoon. He had just arrived on the limited express from New York and was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Goodloe, wife of Maj. Goodloe, of the United States Marine Corps. He got off the train with the rest of the passengers and walked with his daughter the entire length of the platform and through the gate to the station proper. He seemed to walk with an effort and to breathe with labor, but these symptoms were the usual accompaniments of exertion with him for some months past. After passing the station the Senator and his daughter were joined by his private secretary, who had brought a carriage to carry them home. A few words were exchanged with regard to the care of the baggage, when the Senator suddenly turned pale and with the remark, "I feel dizzy," fell into the arms of his companions. They could not support his weight and he dropped to the floor, where he swooned away. His daughter was naturally alarmed and screamed for help. Willing hands were numerous, as the station was crowded at the time, and the limp and helpless body was borne into the office of the station master, about twenty feet away. Great excitement ensued, and although it was apparent that the Senator was half dead, half a dozen messengers were dispatched for physicians and all the remedies at hand were applied, but to no effect.

BECK'S PROBABLE SUCCESSOR.

The Lexington Transcript says: "Who will succeed Beck was the frequent inquiry after the fact of his death had been known. Nearly all were of the opinion that Carlisle is the next in point of statemanship and ability to the dead Senator. A good many spoke of Col. Breckinridge as the best man in Kentucky to succeed Mr. Beck. Ex-Gov. McCreary was quite popular with the Legislature. Gov. S. B. Buckner was frequently mentioned as a possible candidate. Another possibility is Hon. James A. McKenzie, who is said to desire to go to the Senate. J. Proctor Knott and Judge Wm. Lindsay are also mentioned as aspirants for a seat in the Senate."

The Legislature now in session will have to elect the new Senator. Under the law the first ballot will be taken next Tuesday and every day thereafter until an election is had. The session which was to close on the 12th will, of course, have to be prolonged.

In almost every neighborhood throughout the west there are one or more persons whose lives have been saved by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, or have been cured of chronic diarrhoea by it. Such persons take especial pleasure in recommending the Remedy to others. The praise that follows its introduction and use makes it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Buckner Leavell.

LEGISLATIVE MATTERS.

Covington's registration bill has passed in the house.

The general lottery bill has been stifled in committee.

There were forty-five new bills offered in the House Friday.

Gov. Buckner has vetoed the "contempt stiff" bill. The veto was definite.

The town charters of Elkton and Kirkmansville have been amended by the Senate.

The act providing for the plugging of abandoned gas wells has passed both houses.

The house bill has passed authorizing the Catarrh Nall to be maintained in the W. K. L. Asylum without cost to her parents.

The act to make the offices of surveyor and deputy county clerk of Todd county compatible has passed both houses.

The lottery feature of the Paducah Wood-Ware Co. has been repealed. This is the last lottery in the state operating with chartered privileges.

Representative Walker's circus bill passed the Senate Saturday. It makes it unlawful for circuses to advertise attractions which they do not have.

The per capita for lunatics has been reduced by the House from $150 to $135 per annum. A bill has also passed making the cost to pay patients the same as other patients.

The Senate refused to concur in the House amendment to the Christian County Common Pleas bill and it returns to the House to be given another chance. Mr. Clark is not opposing the bill, as stated by the Louisville Times.

The Mason-Foard Co. propose to surrender their lease of the convict labor by July 1 if the Stats will take their machinery plant off their hands or give them thirty days to remove it. The proposition was referred to a committee.

Rev. Dr. John W. Hanner, Sr., Clarksville, Tenn.:

E. M. THOMAS—I wish to recommend your Vitalia as an excellent remedy for disordered stomach and torpid liver. One knows what he swallows in the capsules; that is much. And the ingredients of the pills, you say, make the best chalazone known to the profession, and from long acquaintance I believe you. The action of this medicine in proper doses is gentle, painless and wholesome. During forty years of my life I took no medicine of any kind, but now need occasionally just such remedy as your Vitalia. Your old friend,

JOHN W. HANNER, Sr.
For sale by Rogers & Elgin, Hopkinsville, and McReynolds & Co., Clarksville.

Some of the Grand Army boys may be interested in the following from Alex D. Pope, A. D. C., Commander Dept. Tenn. and Ga.: He says: "We have had an epidemic of whooping cough here, (Stewart, Tenn.) and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been the only medicine that has done any good." There is no danger from whooping cough when this remedy is freely given. It completely controls the disease. 50 cent bottles for sale by Buckner Leavell.

Dawson Springs.

Situated in Hopkins county, on the N. N. & M. V. R. R. near the banks of Trade water river, are the justly celebrated Dawson Springs. These springs have become a national resort for invalids, and the great Summer resort for tourists and pleasure seekers. The Arcadia company keep their hotel open for the reception of guests both winter and summer, the summer season just now commencing. This hotel, with N. M. Holman & Co., proprietors, and J. W. Pritchett, manager, does a tremendous business all the year round. The fare is always of the very best the markets afford and is served in elegant style. The Chalybeate spring is only a few yards from the hotel, the Salts being only about one hundred yards off. Guests staying at the Arcadia have full and free access to the mineral waters, without extra charge. When you go to Dawson stop at the Arcadia and you'll be well pleased, and go home happy.

Dan. O'Sullivan, editor of the Louisville Critic, was arrested and put under bond last week, upon a warrant of Maj. D. W. Sanders, charging him with criminal libel in publishing that an attempt had been made by a friend of the latter to bribe Senator Hendricks in the interest of a lottery company. As Senators Hendricks and Kemp endorse the Critic's report as substantially correct, editor O'Sullivan is not losing any sleep over the matter.

The State Senate has passed the amended anti-trust bill, a most vicious measure, which has gone to the Governor. The title of the bill is one to catch the public ear, but it will utterly fail to accomplish the ends aimed at—the suppression of monopolies—but on the other hand will do untold damage if it becomes a law, in the opinion of those who understand its provisions.

Buckner Leavell, the druggist, desires us to publish the following testimonial, as he handles the remedy and believes it to be reliable:

I bought a 50 cent bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and applied it to my limbs which have been afflicted with rheumatism at intervals for one year. At the time I bought the Pain Balm I was unable to walk. I can truthfully say that Pain Balm has completely cured me. R. H. FABRE, Hopewell, Kas. Mr. A. B. Cox, the leading druggist at Hopewell, vouches for the truth of the above statement.

Col. McCarty declines to be considered for president of the K. P. A. This narrows the contest down to Woodson and Walton.

The Louisville Times celebrated its sixth birthday on the 18th inst. by appearing in double form with many extra features, novel and entertaining.

The medical fraternity, backed up by carefully compiled statistics, is almost a unit in declaring that a moderate use of stimulants conduces to long life. It is also admitted that old whiskey is by far the best stimulant that can be used. Leading physicians recommend the W. H. Harper Whiskey, because it is pure, possessed of a superior flavor and bouquet, and is not forced for sale until it is old and thoroughly matured.

Of Louisville.

It is with pleasure that the Faculty of the Drs. K. & K. Surgeons' Medical and Surgical Institute, of Louisville, have to announce the consent of their principal Consulting Surgeon to visit a number of Kentucky and Tennessee Cities and Towns, which may be enabled to have the desired consultation without leaving home.

The medical fraternity, backed up by carefully compiled statistics, is almost a unit in declaring that a moderate use of stimulants conduces to long life. It is also admitted that old whiskey is by far the best stimulant that can be used. Leading physicians recommend the W. H. Harper Whiskey, because it is pure, possessed of a superior flavor and bouquet, and is not forced for sale until it is old and thoroughly matured.

Two School Trustees Elected.

The annual election to choose two trustees for the Hopkinsville Public Schools was held Saturday. Messrs. J. D. Russell and Nat Gaither were the retiring members. An organized warfare was made upon these gentlemen and they were defeated for re-election by Messrs. J. E. McPherson, and W. T. Tandy, two very popular and capable young men. The ticket was brought out by certain parties who had grievances against the school board. There were no well-defined issues in the fight. It was believed early in the morning that the new ticket was being run with the idea of removing Superintendent Ditch, but the gentlemen on the ticket disclaimed any such purpose and no active work was done for the old ticket after 9 o'clock. The new ticket had an organized force at work all day getting out the vote.

Various reasons were given by the workers for the proposed change, but the idea that came nearest being the issue was that the new men favored "home talent," while the old members were for imported teachers. That very little regard was paid to truth or fair play is clearly shown by the fact that one of the old members has never voted for any one of the few non-resident teachers employed during the last ten years. He has uniformly voted for home applicants, regardless of other considerations.

The credit of defeating the old members is claimed by and conceded to a source that opposed the establishment of the schools, but this is merely a coincidence and does not imply that the gentlemen elected would lend themselves to any unfriendly movement. It merely shows that there has been a very gratifying change of heart among those now most anxious to show their friendship for the schools by running them. This, of course, does not apply to many friends of the schools who voted for Messrs. McPherson and Tandy on a question of popularity and personal preference. Another noticeable feature of the fight was that some of the most ardent and boisterous advocates of "home talent" were themselves conspicuous representatives of the very class of talent they were so intent on shutting out. These observations are not made in a complaining spirit, for the KENTUCKIAN is confident that the new members will prove worthy successors of the faithful and experienced trustees they will succeed.

The number of votes cast was 251, out of a total vote of 700. The result stood:

W. T. Tandy - 172 Nat Gaither 86

J. E. McPherson 167 J. D. Russell 76

THE GRASS DANCE.

One of the Surviving Festivities of the North American Indian.

Every race, civilized and savage, must have its play. When David danced before the ark, it was in the performance of a religious rather than a social ceremony, and this is true of many of the dances of the ancient races, and essentially true in the main of the dancing of Indian tribes. Many of these dances partaking of the nature of the savage race were barbarous and cruel. Many Indian dances, however, are still enjoyed. The majority of them are racially religious ceremonies, and with a race so filled with mysticism and reverence for the supernatural as the Indians to mere pastimes, even foolishness bears a relation.

To-day our correspondent witnessed at the Crow Agency a hop or grass dance, the most picturesque and wildest scene that could be painted or imagined.

The savage finds nothing useful or aesthetic in the habiliments of civilization and even blankets and leggings more to his fancy are discarded in the two most important occupations of life—war and dance. The only garment his sense of modesty or comfort requires is the cloak, yet it must be said his aesthetic sense is instinctively higher or more cultivated than that of his white brother. The painted and beaded and feathered savage is a far more grotesque and pleasing sight than the dude and his accoutrements, and his admiration is less incomprehensible than the artistic eye than the civilized gentleman's evening dress, and I might add, not much more without the bounds of modest delicacy than the evening dress of the civilized lady.

As among all ancient nations, the sexes mingle in very few of the dances. There are squat dances and buck dances, but promiscuous dancing seems undiscovered or under the ban. The grass dance is a buck dance; the squaws arrange the area and contribute the grace and inspiration of their presence, but bear no part in the dance.

The costume of the dance is striking. A crest of gaudy-colored berries surrounds his own roached and braided long jet-black hair. At his waist is bound a feathered garment which covers half the back and trails on the ground. As his broad arms and legs are encircled by a garland of shining metal rich-hued furs, and horns are the rosettes of many various varieties of ornaments are disposed about his body, but the most important part of his make-up is the ornamentation applied directly to the skin. This is painted from face to feet in most fanciful and grotesque variety; one-half the face will be red or black, the other white, or perhaps on a solid ground will be imposed figures of white, or green or blue. The body may be painted white, or red, or green, or may combine all the colors the fancy suggests.

"Oh, aren't those pretty silk tights?" was the comment of a tenderfoot when he saw the first full-dress dance. A neighbor suggested that they were not silk tights, but only buckskin, a "mot" link with North preserving.

The instrument which furnishes music for the dance is the drum, made usually by stretching a skin over a section of the hollow bowl of a cottonwood tree. Around this are seated ten or a dozen drummers, each provided with one stick, with which he pounds vigorously and in excellent time. The arena is a circle of smooth grass one hundred feet wide surrounded by an awning for the protection from the sun of the dancers and spectators.

It is a spectacle more savagely grand and strikingly picturesque and stirring than can be found elsewhere to see one hundred painted and feathered savages at the sound of the "tom-tom" spring from their seats, each chanting a weird song in the minor key and a step peculiar and intangible, in absolutely perfect accord with the music, enact the various figures of the dance, the sham battle, the stealthy advance, the fierce charge, the killing, the scalping, the retreat, the figure and music growing more wild and grotesque as the dance progresses.—Helena (Mont.) Cor. N. Y. Sun.

MATERIAL PROGRESS.

It's Development Electricity Will be the Principal Force.

Its material effects will, we suppose, in the main be good. An increase to the productive force of the race can hardly be other than beneficial, and if electricity is found not to increase that force, it will be dismising. Civilization is dependent, first of all, on the possibility that a man may produce something more than he and his family want to eat, and any power, not even that of the sun, which can increase that surplus without increasing toll, must tend to promote material civilization.

The loss the world wasted in comparison with the output the greater the conservation of human energy. The mere lightening of the day of two hours of toll with loss of product would in itself be incalculable; but the world does not know that the equalization of chances as between the more favored and the less favored countries and districts, which most ultimately come when electricity is generated in gigantic reservoirs and distributed, say, over Western India from the white gorge of the Nerbudda, or over Southern England from the gorge of the Tyne, can be any injury to the world. It is hard to think of Somerset being repopulated without a sigh for that glory of beautiful seclusion which must vanish; but the sigh will not come from these "common millions" for whom the beauty of the world was designed, mostly in vain.

Quick means of travel already exist, and their further diffusion can not injure man, while the relief which electricity may bring to that section of the animal world which works for its bread may be almost infinite. Imagine the 60,000,000 of plowing oxen now toiled to death by man's labor superceded by electric accumulators! We can see no balance of evil in the world's results of electricity, or can see it clearly only in this, that it may level the intelligent and in the universal competition it may promote, may lower the total average of civilization.

The world would hardly gain if Chinamen had more silk and Europeans fewer shirts. That result is too distant or sound speculation; we know not the next advantage that enterprise and morale may secure to the higher races; nor thinking of mankind as if Europeans were all, we can see no ground or apprehension in the development of electricity as a material force.—Spec-
